NSW Police Force Policing Mental Health

Navigating Mental Health Services Forum

19th June 2019

Presented by:
Acting Inspector Lee Ingmire
Lake Illawarra PD

NSWPF Corporate Objectives

- Reduce the risk of injury to police and mental health consumers during mental health crisis events,
- Improved awareness by front line police of risks involved in dealing with mental health consumers and strategies to reduce injuries to police and consumers,
- Improved collaboration with other government and non-government agencies in the response to and management of mental health crisis events, and
- Reduce the time consumed by police in the handover of mental health consumers into the health care system.

Section 22 Mental Health Act (2007)

- (1) A police officer who, in any place, finds a person who appears to be mentally ill or mentally disturbed may apprehend the person and take the person to a declared mental health facility if the officer believes on reasonable grounds that:
- (a) the person is committing or has recently committed an offence or that the person has recently attempted to kill himself or herself or that it is probable that the person will attempt to kill himself or herself or any other person or attempt to cause serious physical harm to himself or herself or any other person, and
 - (b) it would be beneficial to the person's welfare to be dealt with in accordance with this Act, rather than otherwise in accordance with law.
 - (c) A police officer may apprehend a person under this section without a warrant and may exercise any powers conferred by section 81 on a person who is authorised under that section to take a person to a mental health facility or another health facility.

NSW Police Force

Section 81 (NSW MHA 2007)

- Section 81
- (1) Empowers Police to transport Mental Health Consumers
- (2) Use of reasonable force and restraint
- (3) Sedation
- (4) Searching
- (5) Seizing of items found
- (6) Frisk and ordinary searches

Police Role in the MOU

- Police main function is public safety
- Police can assist other agencies where public safety is at risk or imminent
- Police are empowered to assist with transport (as a last resort), assist in the sedation of patients and to search
- In the absence of demonstrated risk, police should not routinely attend to “concern for welfare” checks on behalf of other agencies

NSW Police Force

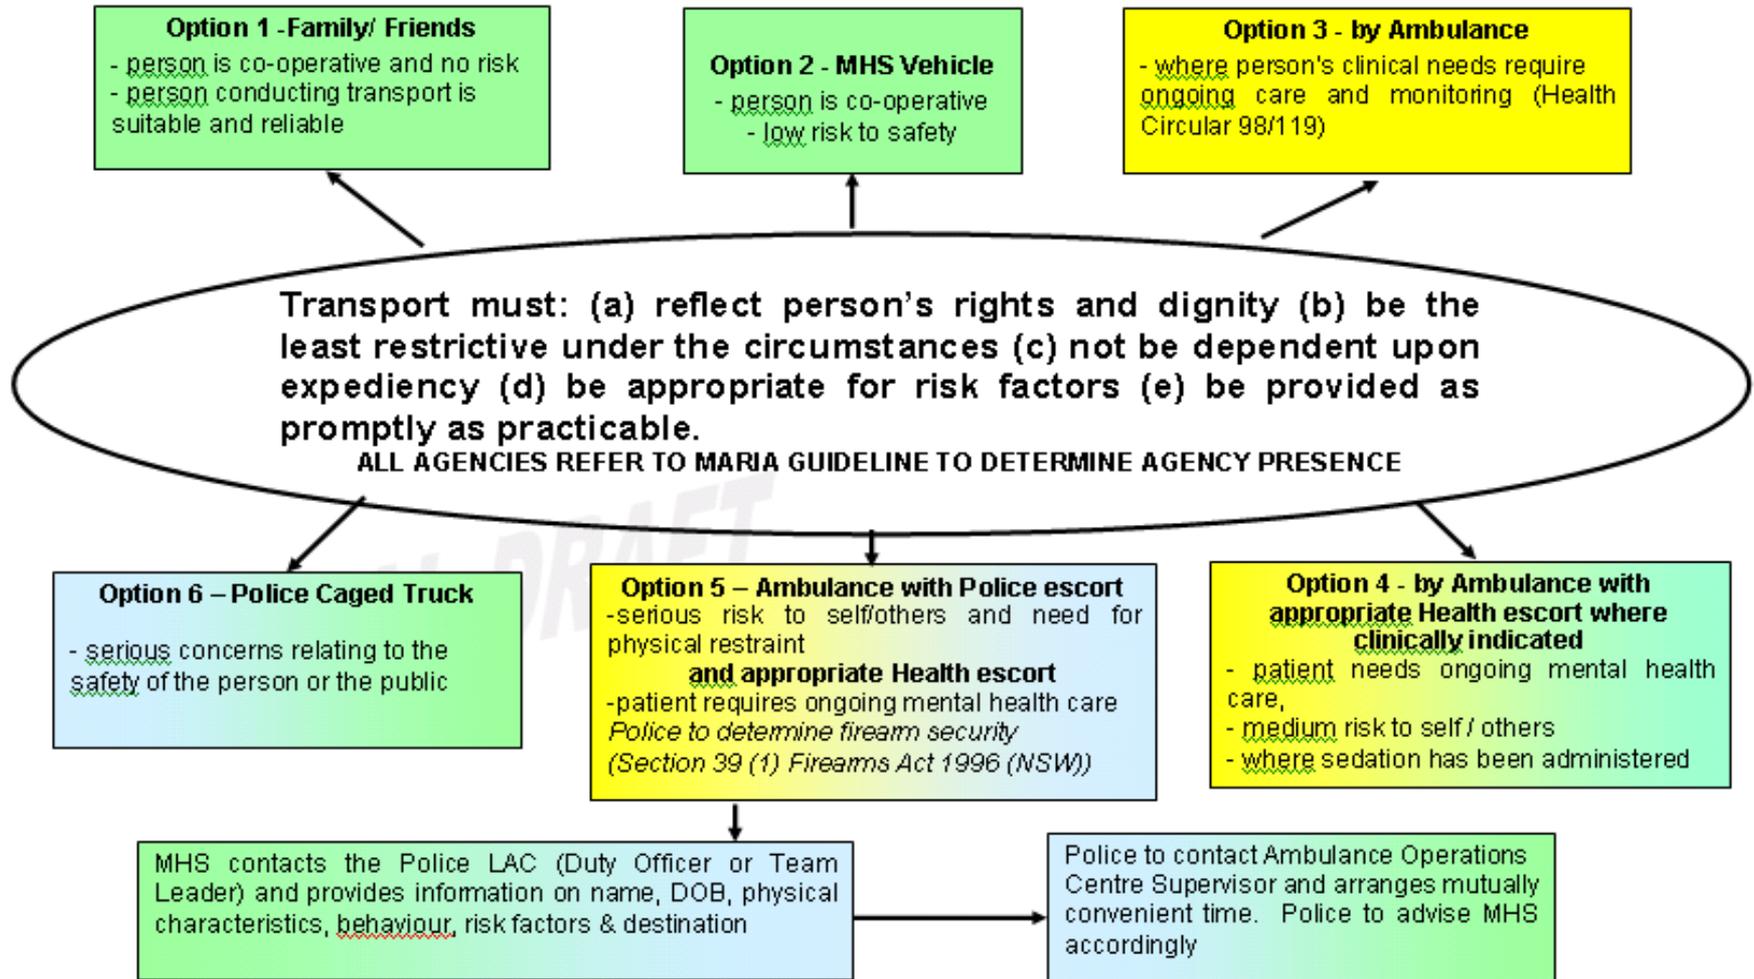

Key points in 2018 MOU between NSW Health and Police

- Police only transport Mentally Ill persons as a last resort
- Police can complete a Section 22 and hand the person and the signed form to NSW Ambulance to transport
- The primary role for NSWPF is Public Safety
- Dynamic Risk assessments allow Police and NSW Health to share information to support the persons care and treatment

Transport Options

APPENDIX C -TRANSPORT OPTIONS - COMMUNITY SETTING

What is NSWPF doing in the Mental Health space

- MHIT established in NSW in 2007 as a pilot
- Fulltime unit in NSW Police Force
- Responsible for mental health strategy, policy, program delivery and training for NSWPF
- Network of 53 Mental Health Contact Officers (MHCO's) across the state
- An Alumni of 2760 officers who have undertaken the Four Day Training since 2008
- In 2019 YTD the MHIT have trained over 700 frontline and specialist staff

NSW Police Force

MHIT Training

Comprehensive four day training program includes;

- Trained in signs and symptoms of mental illness, Ambulance procedures, dynamic risk assessments in accordance with the MOU, child and adolescent disorders, medications, personality disorders, substance abuse, Mental Health Act legislation, Diversity and Aboriginal Mental Health.
- STOPAR De-escalation training module with an emphasis on distance (increased) and time (slowing)
- A Consumer and Carer panel to discuss the lived experience
- Undertake three (3) High Risk Role play scenarios to allow police to put into practice the information they have learnt – (role players are clinical health workers)

Conclusion

- The NSWPF is taking an active role in how we as an organisation deal with mental health presentations
- We are achieving this through training, policy and engaging with other involved agencies.
